

THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME AUSTRALIA

Bachelor of Education (Conversion)

School of Education, Fremantle Campus

Available on either a full-time or part-time basis, the Bachelor of Education (Conversion) is an undergraduate program that allows teachers trained for three years in Australia to upgrade their qualification to four-year degree status. The program consists of eight courses, including one in Theology or Ethics.

Why study this degree?

Using a combination of intensive, or semi-intensive face-to-face classes and external tuition, the Bachelor of Education (Conversion) provides an exciting pathway from your existing three-year teaching qualification to a full Bachelor of Education. This program, which is recognised by the Teachers' Registration Board of Western Australia, will enhance your future employment prospects and also open the possibility of undertaking further postgraduate study at The University of Notre Dame Australia.

The program has been tailored to the needs of working teachers, such as yourself, and includes external courses which allow you the flexibility to shape your own schedule, plus some intensive and semi-intensive classroom sessions at our Fremantle Campus. The Bachelor of Education (Conversion) degree consists of eight courses chosen from the current list published on the School of Education homepage. One of these must be a Theology or Ethics course at a 4000 level.

To work in the Catholic school system, you must include sufficient studies in theology and religious education to meet the requirements set out by the Catholic Education Commission of Western Australia. You may also use a combination of courses to complete a four-course specialisation in Religious Education or Special Needs.

Program summary
