

THE UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME AUSTRALIA

Master of Health Professional Education

School of Medicine, Fremantle Campus

The Master of Health Professional Education is available to health professionals who currently perform an educational function or who are transitioning to an educational role in a clinical tertiary or academic setting. This postgraduate program is facilitated entirely online. Available on a part-time study basis this program is a combination of coursework and dissertation. You will develop a wide repertoire of educational skills that are specifically aimed at best practice in contemporary health education contexts.

Why study this degree?

At The University of Notre Dame Australia, we understand that as a clinical educator you have multiple priorities. Juggling multiple responsibilities such as patient care, supervision, teaching, research and development, management and administration it can be difficult for you to find adequate time to further your education.

The flexible nature of the Master of Health Professional Education allows multiple entry and exit points. All program content is delivered electronically, which means that you will be able to access your studies at a time, place, and pace that best suits you. Furthermore, all our subjects are fully facilitated, meaning that online guidance and mentoring are provided. Where viable, groups can be formed and the subjects will adopt a blended learning approach which includes a mix between face-to-face workshop-based activities and electronic modes of communication.

In addition to the subjects studied in the Graduate Diploma of Health Professional Education, you will conduct research in a particular area of interest. In order to ensure you engage in high quality research, you will be introduced to the key components of preparing and writing a research proposal. Graduates may pursue various career options, including educational practice, health research, curriculum development and administration.
